more story concerning the and then we promise to let The following advice is given her by Peck's Sun:

It is said that when any one speaks to Mrs. Langtry about her inpropriety in being so familiar with young Gebhardt, she looks surprised and says: "Why Freddie is a mere boy.
He is only twenty-three years old."
We do not desire to give advice where it is not needed, but as an old man we cannot help telling Mrs. Langtry to beware of the American boys of twenty-three. English boys of that age may be mere children that handsome women can use as pets, the same as they would use poodles, with no serious results. The English boys of twenty-three may be pulling infants that can be held in the lap, but the American boys of that age is not that kind of a hairpin, and a handsome English woman who presumes upon the youth and innocence of such a child is likely to wake up to a realizing sense, when it is everlastingly too late, that the American youth of twenty-three is endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which is life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Freddie may appear to be, to the untutored mind of an English beauty, a harmless little child, good enough to carry shawls to a matinee, but unacquainted with the wickedness of the world, but when she learns that American boys in roundabouts do not permit handsome women to pet them with impunity, without showing that they know what is the matter with Hanner, she will keep the twenty-three-year-old American little boy on the other side of the barbed wire fence.

We do not blame the lady. She has simply been deceived in the style of the American youth. She has lived all her life where men have become princes before they can say their souls are their own. She has lived where men in the ordinary walks of life think they are in luck if they are allowed to look at a handsome woman, and who never know what it is to love until they are so old that they wear false teeth. She has lived where a boy of twenty-three is not allowed to go in company without his mother, and where they do not learn to be truly bad until late in life. In acting as a mother to young Gebhardt, Mrs.
Langtry is taking many chances, and as an old man who knows much of the American youth from experience, we advise her to quit.

If the English lady only knew of half the damage that has been done by American mere boys of twenty-three and under who have a care, and would not allow this youth the freedom of her boudoir. We do not know what a boudoir is, but it is something that belongs to a woman, and Freddie is too young to be there. It is none of our business, but as the lady seems to be unsophisticated—at least no one knows that she has been sophisticated—we deem it a duty to warn her against these boys. It is unsafe to hold this youth in her lap, just as unsafe as it would be to hold a grown person. Because she looks upon him as a mere boy, she may be tempted to let him kiss her, and that would break her all up.
American boys of twenty-three kiss so near like grown persons as to deceive the oldest inhabitants, and if he is a representative American youth and she allows him privileges far beyond his years she will find that it is not good for man to be alone with an English beauty. She may not believe it, but American mere boys have been known to frequent the vicinity of ladies who did not realize that the boys were men to all intents and purposes until it has been necessary to call in the neighbors and wake up the old folks and call the ministers up in the night to celebrate nuptials, and there was trouble all around. We mention these things that this lone woman may realize that what appears in America to be a "mere boy" may actually turn out to be the oldest kind of a person, full of guile, who plays the fool in buying diamonds for an actress while in his heart there lurks wicked designs upon her peace of mind.

The woods are full of them, and as an elderly person who hates to see such innocence placed in an awkward position, we go out of the broken path and implore this woman, who has such child-like faith in a "mere boy of twenty-three," to cut him to keep on his side of the compound, and not, under any circumstances to allow himself to drive the horses while he puts his arm around her sealskin cloak to get his hands warm.
Freddie is a bold, bad man, and we would bet on it. He would admit it himself, privately, we have no doubt.

New Life
is given by using BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. In the Winter it strengthens and warms the system; in the Spring it enriches the blood and conquers disease; in the Summer it gives tone to the nerves and digestive organs; in the Fall it enables the system to stand the shock of sudden changes.

In no way can disease be so surely prevented as by keeping the system in perfect condition. Brown's IRON BITTERS ensures perfect health through the changing seasons, it disarms the danger from impure water and miasmatic air, and it prevents Consumption, Kidney and Liver Disease, &c.

H. S. Berlin, Esq., of the well-known firm of H. S. Berlin & Co., Attorneys, Le Droit Building, Washington, D. C., writes, Dec. 5th, 1881:
Gentlemen: I take pleasure in stating that I have used Brown's Iron Bitters for malaria and nervous troubles, caused by overwork, with excellent results.

Beware of imitations. Ask for BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and insist on having it. Don't be imposed on with something recommended as "just as good." The genuine is made only by the Brown Chemical Co. Baltimore, Md.
